N.G.S. is Fully Insured

The N.G.S. is delighted to announce the First-Ever-Numismatic Insurance of all the numismatic items received for certification and grading.

The N.G.S. is the 1st Indian company to insure all coins and banknotes received by it for grading and certification. The insurance covers all the probable risks including theft, fire, loot, earthquake, flood, storm and tempest, within the N.G.S. office as well as during the shipment. The insurance of all the coins, tokens, medal and banknotes with the N.G.S. start from the moment they are received by the N.G.S. till they are delivered to the customer by hand delivery or by courier/angadia. It means the collectors and dealers can have added faith in the N.G.S. with regards to the safety of their items.

The insurance is provided by the industry-leader, IFFCO-TOKIO General Insurance Co. Ltd, Mumbai.

Insurance Charges & Conditions:

- The insurance is optional. A customer can either opt for the insurance by paying necessary charges and get fully insured for his coins and notes, or he can decide not to opt for the insurance.
- If the customer does not avail the insurance cover, than the liability of the N.G.S. in case of loss of such coins/notes will be restricted to only the grading charges received by it for the said items.
- Insurance Charges are minimal with only 1% of the total Declared Value by the customer.
- The minimum insurance charges are Rs. 500 or 1% of the total Declared Value, whichever is higher.
- In an unlikely case of loss of items, the customer will be reimbursed with maximum up to the Declared Value of the said item as mentioned by him in the Submission Form.
- However, if the N.G.S. opines that the Declared Value as mentioned by the customer at the time of the submission is much inflated than the actual market price, than the N.G.S. reserves the right to Replace the item with the same Grade to the customer; or decide the Fair Market Value of that item and reimburse the customer with that amount. But in any case, the reimbursed amount can never be more than the Declared Value of the customer. In all cases, the decision of the N.G.S. will be final and binding.

Thank you!
Our consigners and bidders for a very successful auction in April.

It is not too late to start a collection

By R. Vaidyanadhan

The Proofs and UNC sets of the Republic India occupy top place in the collectors' mind, while others have no takers.

Among the much-neglected denominations, particularly the One Rupee coin catches my imagination. This denomination should get equal priority like the British India rupee collection. The One Rupee's presence in the Republic India has enviable length of time 60 years!! It offers a plethora of varieties and it is not too late to start a collection.

The first issues were from a single mint and they are 1950, 1954, 1962 and 1970. From 1975 to 1982 they were released from two mints. From 1984 to 1992 and 2007 they came out of three mints, from 1993 to 1997, 2002 to 2006, 2009 to 2011 from four mints, and from 1998 to 2001 from a mind-boggling five mints.

Now imagine the difficulty in assembling all these coins, mint-wise. A tough and Herculean effort indeed!

This apart, one has to add B raised mint-mark coins released as a part of the commemorative sets between 1970 and 1979.

Besides this, you have One Rupee denomination with the motifs of the Commemorative issues which to date comes to 26 varieties and they were also issued by various mints, 2, 3 and 4 at a time.

The whole thing makes an enviable collection.

Now I find a couple of dealers are specialising in this field, and I am sure their services would reduce our burden of identifying mints etc. and accomplish a master piece collection. What you are compiling today is building a treasure for the future.

End of an Era - One Rupee Notes

by Amit A. Surana

The average person can't afford to buy gold, so it is most suitable for wealthy people for investment and central banks.

With silver being so much cheaper, the average person can go to his local coin dealer and buy some.

The advantages of silver over gold as an inflation hedge are numerous and need to be considered:

- * The silver market is much smaller, and it doesn't take as much money moving into silver as an investment to move the market up. Silver has outperformed gold dramatically over the last few years, going from $3 an ounce to over $40 an ounce.
- * Silver is also a very important industrial metal with over 3,000 industrial uses.
- * The government has never seized silver, although they have seized gold. If that worries you (it doesn't worry me much), you would feel safer with silver rather than gold.
- * The government actually has no stockpile of silver to unload. There is now more gold above ground than silver because of the silver industrial usage.
- * I look upon silver as money. Throughout history more silver has been used more for money than gold. Historically, silver coins became the common denominator for money in more places and more times than gold.

If you are wealthy and can afford to buy some gold, be my guest. I think you will do just fine. However, silver will outperform gold about three to one. When I receive income from my business, I set aside enough cash to take care of my normal business affairs because paper money is still a means of exchange, although it is no longer a store of value. As a means of exchange, you can conduct your normal affairs. If I have any left over, I go to my local coin dealer and buy silver.

What kind of silver should you buy?

There are American silver eagles, junk silver, and foreign silver coins that can be bought from any coin dealer, and they are also easy to sell. The price fluctuates not only daily, but hourly. So there is always a place you could sell it.

But why would you want to sell it if the government is still inflating the currency? Hang on to your silver.

How far will silver go? Darned if I know; that's above my pay grade. All I know is that we are in a bull market, and we ain't seen nothin yet.

I don't expect it to retreat. When I buy silver, I am just buying another form of money that I believe will prevail over paper.

Where will you keep it? Any place that thieves won't be able to find it or get to it. Concealment is probably the best strategy. I wouldn't keep it in my bank safe-deposit box, just in case the government decided to change its position on silver. Right now, silver is just treated as another commodity.

The government is even manufacturing and selling silver coins. But they have no stockpile, so they have to buy on the open market just like you do.

There are more people in the world who can afford to buy some silver than can afford to buy gold; thus, smaller volume will move the market up and up, and up.

Who cares about that? I don't care if it goes up. I won't sell it any time soon. This bull market will not end until the world changes its attitudes towards paper money. There is no sign of that.

Some day you might want to give it to your children or build your estate for them to inherit it. They will thank you and call your name blessed.
